Why BabyXRP is a BEP-20 token?

As a whole, the invention of Ethereum was a revolutionary step for the crypto market. It gave people the ability of smart contracts and to launch their tokens. Due to the aforementioned reasons, the Ethereum was default blockchain for many innovative and creative projects.

However, the launch of Decentralized Finance (DeFi) and the popularity of cryptocurrency have caused a lot of problems with Ethereum.

Transaction fees and time has increased so much that developers started to look for alternatives. It is the time where Binance Smart Chain came into the scene.

What is Binance Smart Chain?

Binance started to work on the alternative for Ethereum and it came up with the Binance Smart Chain. Binance works in the same way as Ethereum--decentralized applications, smart contracts, and the ability to launch the token. Binance Smart Chain does all of this with much better efficiency.

Ethereum uses the token format named ERC-20 and Binance Smart Chain named its format BEP-20. The token launched by the BEP-20 has 30% to 100% lower fees in comparison to Ethereum. The transaction time of the BSC is much lower than Ethereum. Due to these reasons, BabyXRP was launched on the BSC.
